TO GIVE LUNCHESES TO MEN ON ROADS

Gettysburg Suffragists, with those in the County, will contribute their share to work on highways next Wednesday.

Distributing coffee and sandwiches to all who turn out on Adams County's roads next Wednesday to observe Governor Brumbaugh's request for a state-wide Good Roads Day, the suffragists of Gettysburg and the various towns will render practical aid to the supervisors and their men. This course of procedure was decided upon on Tuesday evening when local suffragists met with Mrs. Evelyn B. Binz, state headquarters suffrage organizer.

Mrs. Binz and the Gettysburg workers have secured from the commissioners' office a list of all the supervisors in the county. Committees will be appointed in all the county towns to interview these supervisors, find out where they expect to work on Good Roads Day, learn the number of men they expect to turn out to help them, and any other information that they can give.

Next Wednesday morning the committee will then start out from the towns and will visit every company of men, distributing to them ham sandwiches and coffee. If the day is very warm, milk or buttermilk will also be taken along. The committee will all wear suffrage pins and they will distribute suffrage literature to the men as they hand out the lunches. It is believed that many can be signed up for the cause at this time and in this way.

The various supervisors in the county are said to be receiving with favor Governor Brumbaugh's suggestion about the state-wide Good Roads Day and are calling for assistance from all the residents of their districts to turn out and help. The men, in turn, who are called upon, are ready to do their share and hundreds of workmen should be on the principal county roads during the day. The presence of the suffragists traveling by automobile and rendering their valuable service will do much to make the affair a success, it is thought.

Meetings arranged by Mrs. Binz include a session for women in the Court House next Saturday afternoon at 2:30; and a meeting at the home of Mrs. Clara Rebert, Cashtown, on Monday. Mrs. A. I. Weidner, of Arendtsville, and Mrs. G. W. Koser, Biglerville, are arranging meetings in their towns; and Mrs. Binz will speak at several places in the county next Sunday.

PROVED AN ALIBI

Woman Held, Man Released, on Theft Charge.

At a hearing held before Alderman John H. Fry, of York, Lizzie Peters, of New Oxford, was held for court, on the charge of felonious entry, larceny of morphine tablets and jewelry from Dr. Venus' residence on the fifth day of May. Harry W. Lookenbill, of New Oxford, whom the Peters woman implicated in the same offense was discharged.

District Attorney Harvey Gross represented the Commonwealth and R. M. Straley, of New Oxford, represented the defendant. It was plainly shown by witnesses from New Oxford that on May 5th, when the larceny was committed, Lookenbill was working in the shoe factory in New Oxford, and was innocent.

HIGHER COST OF PRISONERS

Adams County May Have to Double its Appropriation for Maintenance of Men Sent to State Penitentiary. Bill Passes Senate.

It is figured out that the consolidation of the Eastern and Western penitentiaries at the Centre county institution which is now being constructed, the bill for which passed the Senate this week, will mean a good deal more in the way of expenditures for Adams county for the maintenance of her prisoners than is paid now.

The per capita wage per day for maintenance in the Eastern penitentiary, where the Adams county convicts are sent, was 19 cents in 1914, while it was 39 cents in the Western penitentiary. In 1914 Adams county paid $1191.68. These same prisoners, under the Western penitentiary charge of 39 cents a day, would have cost $2446.08 or $1254.40 more than in the Eastern penitentiary.

A number of senators who voted for the consolidation bill obtained reports of the two institutions for 1914 afterward and did some figuring, much to their astonishment.

It is said that an effort will be made to have Governor Brumbaugh veto the bill.

CHILDREN AT FUNERAL

Casket Borne through Two Lines of Playmates.

Attended by almost every child and many of the older residents of the town, the funeral of little Cletus Collins, who was drowned in a quarry hole near McSherrystown, was held in St. Mary's church, that place, on Tuesday. The funeral was one of the most beautiful and impressive that has taken place in this neighborhood for many years.

The lad was a pupil at the parochial schools in McSherrystown and every one of his little playmates and fellow scholars marched to the church where they formed in two single columns in the aisles through which the casket was borne. It was covered with a profusion of flowers.

The little friends of the unfortunate lad took a prominent part in the services which were conducted by the rector, Rev. L. Aug. Reudter. The acolytes were all boys with whom he had played while twelve of his friends composed the choir. Three of them sang "Calvary" and the funeral mass, sung by the boys, was unusually beautiful.

The church was filled with the large number of friends of the family and the whole scene made a lasting impression upon those who attended. Among those from outside of McSherrystown, and residents of this county, who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith, Miss Blanche Smith, Miss Marie Smith and Cletus Smith, of White Hall; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Collins, Two Taverns; John Smith, Littlestown.

HELD SERVICE

APPLE BLIGHT STRIKES COUNTY

But Growers Need not be Unduly Alarmed, Say those who have been in the Business for Long Time. An Annual Visitor.

Many fruit growers in this county report the presence of a blight which has attacked their apple trees and some of them feared the presence of a new pest or enemy which would interfere with their crop this year—otherwise expected to be a record breaker. One of the county's best known orchardists this morning said in an interview on the subject,

"This is nothing at all unusual, though the presence of the trouble this year is possibly more widespread than usual. Some of our growers report a great deal of it while others have comparatively little. The enemy is known as the 'Fire Blight' or 'Pear Blight', and may be expected to return annually. Last year there was comparatively little of it here while two years ago it was generally reported. It has been felt annually with varying severity for many years past."

"It appears in the form of cankers on the limbs and trunk of the tree, attacks the blossoms and later the twigs of the new growth. There is only one way to fight it and that is by cutting out the affected part. This is such a tedious and extensive task that it is a question whether or not it is worth while."

To those growers who are comparatively new in the business the blight caused no little alarm. First they thought the trouble was caused by the spraying material they used, but later they found that it was not to blame and they were at a loss for an explanation. The trouble has appeared not only in this county, but across the mountains in Franklin county, and in Washington county, Maryland.

FACULTY GAME

Dignified Professors Appear on Baseball Diamond.

Youth triumphed over Science Tuesday afternoon when the College and Preparatory faculties met in their annual baseball game on Nixon Field, the teachers from the Carlisle street institution triumphing by a score of 14 to 7. The college men who had forsaken class room, desk and blackboard for the afternoon of fun, showed remarkable agility, one of them becoming so much enthused that he surprised the bleachers with a "flipper" in mid-air. Professors Wing and Dickson composed the battery of the college team, the other members of the faculty taking part being Professors Shipperd, Billheimer, Wentz, Moser, Sanders, Creager, and Kirby. Prof. Stover umpired. The Prep faculty was assisted by several of the boys under their charge. Assistant Principal Rice was in the box and proved effective in trying situations.

WANT FARM HANDS

Advertise in Adams County for Oklahoma Harvesters.

Postmaster Duncan has been advised by the United States Department of Labor that from 16,000 to 18,000 men will be needed in Oklahoma this year for the grain harvest. Wages will range from $2 to $3 a day and board, the applicants having to pay their own expenses to and from the place of employment. The securing of farm labor through the Post Office Department has proved very effective in the past and the bulletin sent to the Gettysburg office will be distributed generally throughout the country where it is thought some men may be secured.

COMING WEDDING

CELEBRATIONS ON LINCOLN HIGHWAY

Unique Demonstrations to Greet Moving Picture Delegation When it Arrives at Various Places along the Route.

While Gettysburg is considering what form of celebration this town will produce for the moving pictures of the Lincoln Highway, to be taken here next Monday, many of the other towns along the route are providing novel exhibitions. Every manner of historical, industrial, civic and commercial celebration is scheduled along the 3,400 miles of the road between the East River and San Francisco Bay.

In Cedar Rapids, Iowa, which is the home of Quaker Oats, a shower of oats will be the feature. At Ames, Iowa, the state college will turn out its 400 cadets in honor of the occasion. At Omaha the Mayor has arranged to meet the official Lincoln Highway car with a delegation of prominent officials and escort it into the city, which will be especially illuminated at night. Grand Island, Nebraska, which is the second largest horse market in the world, will have 2,000 head of horses before the camera. Rough riding of the most spectacular kind is scheduled for Cheyenne, Wyoming, where a great frontier celebration will be held. At Laramie the cattle industry will be interestingly depicted, Rawlins, Wyoming, will indicate its chief industry by an enormous pyramid of wool; the famous trout streams in the vicinity will also be shown and a record catch is promised.

Cities and towns all along the route will be specially decorated for the occasion and the streets will be gay with banners and flags and throngs of people will crowd the highway in automobiles, on horseback and afoot.

Accompanying the large Stutz car, which will carry Consul-at-Large H. C. Ostermann of the Lincoln Highway Association and an expert motion picture operator, will be two other cars, a Studebaker and a Packard, each brand new, each specially equipped, each shining with the colors of the Association. These cars will carry supplies, camp equipment, the wives of the men, and representatives of the great factories which are sending them.

COMMENCEMENT

Public Invited to Attend Events at the Seminary.

The exercises of commencement week at the Theological Seminary include the meeting of the alumni at eight o'clock this evening in Seminary Chapel, when Dr. Marion J. Kline, of Altoona, will make the address; the meeting of the board of trustees on Thursday morning at nine o'clock; the presentation of the painting, "The Last Supper", at two o'clock Thursday afternoon in Seminary Chapel when Dr. H. C. Allen will make the address; and the commencement exercises in College Church Thursday evening at eight o'clock, when Dr. Clutz will preach the baccalaureate sermon and the graduates will receive their diplomas. The public is invited to all the exercises in the Chapel and the Church.

MEMORIAL DAY

Exercises to be Held in this County.

Memorial services will be held in the western part of the county as follows: at Fairfield, Sunday, May 23, at 2:30 o'clock with address by Rev. W. K. Fleck; at Marsh Creek, Saturday, May 29 at nine o'clock in the morning, Rev. D. W. Woods, orator; at Fairfield on Saturday, May 29, at 2:30 p. m., Hon. Theodore McAllister, orator; at Fountaintdale, Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

ANOTHER VICTORY

Emmitsburg School again Falls before Local Collegians.

Gettysburg scored their second victory this season over Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitsburg Tuesday afternoon. Score 8 to 1. Howard pitched for Gettysburg and was back in his old time form. Fast fielding back of him was a feature of the game. Brazil, who pitched for St. Mary's, was wild.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN DEEP STUDY

Final Examinations now on at all Three Buildings and Pupils are Preparing for and Taking their Last Tests.

Happy indeed is that Gettysburg boy or girl who can now snatch an hour or two for a little recreation or an evening at the movies. Examinations are in order, yearly tests are being held, and busy preparations for the end of the year are the topic of the day in the various public school buildings.

At the High School the Seniors are rapidly closing up their work and by the end of the week their final examinations will all have been taken. The tests were started the beginning of the week and are being continued daily, so that the traditional "midnight oil" is being burned in many a home in the shape of gas or electricity. The other classes of the High School are also preparing for their finals and little else is talked of in the halls of the York street building. Following the completion of their work the Seniors will devote all their energies to arranging for commencement.

Scarcely less active are the pupils of the Grammar Schools who now look forward to their graduation with as much ardor as do those who have completed the four years' course in the higher studies. Their finals were also started this week and the different branches are being given attention by pupils and teachers. The examinations will continue into next week, but the last few days will be taken up with the many little details of the closing periods, the turning in of books and so on. And the preparations for the commencement next Friday afternoon are just as important to the pupils in these grades as to the High School boys and girls. A highly attractive program is now being prepared and a pleasant entertainment is assured.

In the High Street building, also, the little people are looking forward to their well earned vacations and their tests, equally hard for them, are being taken in the hope of securing the much coveted "certificate" which signifies promotion to the next higher grade.

The close of the term completes another chapter in the history of the Gettysburg public schools and the work done again serves as a testimonial to the teaching force and the board of education. Exhibitions of the work done have been held from time to time, and only the commencements remain to demonstrate once more the thoroughness and ability with which the tasks of the past nine months have been performed by teachers and pupils.

NEW BILLS

Hunters' Licenses to Pay State Game Commission.

Governor Brumbaugh has signed the Moore senate bill appropriating $303,200 out of the revenue derived from hunters' licenses for the maintenance of the State Game commission, establishment of game preserves and propagation of game, which provides the means for carrying out the plans of the commission for two years.

The items contain the money for the office force, traveling game protector and fifty game protectors, $100,000 for general protection and propagation, and $95,000 for game preserve work.

In the bills approved is one authorizing the governor to close any county or part thereof to hunting and fishing when necessary to do so because of drought, low water and existence of diseases when necessary for conservation of health, welfare or natural resources.

CONDUCTED FUNERAL

Body then Taken to City for Cremation.

Dr. T. C. Billheimer, of Springs avenue, was in Reading to-day conducting the funeral of a former parishioner, Prof. Justus William Jost, a prominent Mason. He was also well known in musical circles. After the services at Reading a delegation of Knights Templar accompanied the body to Philadelphia where it was cremated.

ITALY SEIZES MOTOR CARS

Automobiles in Rome Taken For the Army.

TRIESTE IS IN REVOLT

Adriatic Port of Austria In State of Siege, the Military Failing to Prevent Uprisings.

Rome, May 19. — Dispatches from Trieste confirm previous reports that a revolutionary movement is in progress there.

The town is in a state of siege. The presence of the military, however, has failed to prevent attempts at popular uprisings and demonstrations of hostility to Emperor Francis Joseph.

Dispatches from Trieste telegraphed from the frontier to the Idea Nazionale state that the number killed in the rioting of Sunday was about fifty, including several aged men. The Austrian authorities had three cannon trained on the town from the height of Opicina and also threatened to have the city bombarded by warships. Strong forces of troops occupy the city. There have been explosions in two powder magazines and attempts to pillage gunsmith's shops.

The automobiles of every member of the Italian cabinet, with the exception of Premier Salandra, were commandeered by the army authorities.

The Italian parliament will be asked tomorrow to vote only on a bill containing a single clause conferring plenary powers on the government, in connection with the Austro-Italian crisis, according to the Giornale D'Italia. Final action regarding war is not expected until after that time unless Austria makes the first move, which is considered unlikely. In view of the pacific speeches made in the Hungarian diet.

Michael De Giers, the new Russian ambassador to Italy, was received by King Victor Emmanuel, to whom he presented his credentials. It is asserted that M. De Giers also delivered to the king an autograph letter from Emperor Nicholas congratulating Victor Emmanuel on the attitude taken by Italy.

Alarmist rumors of all kinds are being circulated, and the situation is so tense there are many who believe them. One report was to the effect that Prince von Buelow, the German ambassador, already had left the city secretly. It was unfounded, although a special train is kept in readiness to carry him to St. Gothard if a break comes, as he is understood to have expressed a wish to return to Berlin by way of Switzerland. Another special train stands ready with steam to speed for the Austrian frontier, by way of Verona and Brenner, with Baron von Macchio, the Austrian ambassador, and his staff.

SCENT PEACE CONFERENCE

One Report Is U. S. Offers Good Offices to Austria and Italy.

Washington, May 19.—Following a call at the state department of Count Di Coler, the Italian ambassador, during which he talked with Secretary Bryan and Counselor Lansing, a report became current that the United States had offered its services in an attempt to settle the differences between Austria and Italy.

This call followed that of Ambassador Dumba, of Austria. Secrecy was maintained regarding the visit by all those interested.

A number of other diplomats were received by Secretary Bryan in the time usually devoted to the cabinet meeting. It was learned they called at the suggestion of the department, and this gave rise to the rumor that a move toward restoring peace in Europe was under discussion. No hint of the purpose of the conferences was given out by any of the participants, all declaring they were pledged to secrecy.

SEES WAR WITH ITALY

German Chancellor Leaves Impression Break Is Inevitable.

Amsterdam, May 19.—A dispatch to the Telegram from Berlin says that the impression received by many of the persons who heard the speech of Von Bethmann-Hollweg, the Imperial German chancellor, at the opening of the reichstag, was that war with Italy was inevitable.

Mission Posts Starving.

Boston, May 19.—The American board of commissioners for foreign missions received the following telegram, dated May 15, from the American ambassador at Constantinople, Henry Morgenthau: "All stations begging relief funds. Some say starvation threatened. Please help quickly." The stations mentioned are the seventeen posts of the board in Turkey.

Italian Leader and Son Shot.

FORECAST SHAKE-UP IN BRITISH CABINET

Premier Calls Ministers Into Conference.

London, May 19.—What seems like a cabinet crisis suddenly has been sprung on Great Britain.

There has arisen what appears to be a rupture between the civil head of the admiralty, Winston Spencer Churchill, and the lords of the admiralty, but particularly Lord Fisher.

So serious is the situation precipitated that B. L. Garvin, editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, announced in that paper that Lord Fisher had resigned; that Lord Haldane, Beauchamp and Harcourt would retire, and that the Unionists were joining the government. Garvin declared the cabinet had virtually ceased to exist, and that a national ministry would be formed which would include opposition leaders.

Several ministers were called suddenly into consultation by Premier Asquith. The first of these was Mr. Churchill. He was followed in rapid succession by the attorney general, Sir John Simon; the lord high chancellor, Viscount Haldane; Home Secretary McKenna and Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George.

It had been rumored that the subject might be discussed in the house of commons, but question time passed without any reference to the affair. Rumors that both Mr. Churchill and Lord Fisher had resigned remain unconfirmed.

It was maintained in authoritative circles that differences between Mr. Churchill and Lord Fisher had been satisfactorily composed.

Rumors of a conflict of opinion between Mr. Churchill and the sea lords have been current for some time, Lord Fisher being backed by the other sea lords, according to one report, against the civil head of the admiralty.

WILSON FOR LOCAL OPTION

President Favors Settling Liquor Issue by Smallest Political Units.

Louisville, Ky., May 19.—In a letter to General W. B. Haldeman, editor of the Louisville Times, President Wilson asserts that his personal attitude toward the liquor question now is precisely what it was in 1911 when he wrote the Shannon letter.

In that letter the president, who was then governor of New Jersey, wrote that he favored the settlement of the liquor issue by the smallest political units—namely local option. He stated that his intrusion into state or national politics inevitably brought disruption and rendered constructive legislation impossible.

Yaquis Declare War on Mexico.

On board U. S. S. Colorado, off San Diego, May 19.—Yaqui Indians who have been besieging white settlers in the state of Sonora, Mexico, issued a proclamation declaring the Yaqui nation at war with Mexico, say reports reaching this vessel. They are said to have captured the pumping station at Batanatel, near Empalme, where are railroad shops valued at millions of dollars.

Boy Slain at Reform School.

Philadelphia, May 19.—Thomas J. Long, fifteen years old, whose parents live in this city, was killed during a fight in the Glen Mills reform school. He was punched over the heart by another boy, whose name the school officials refuse to make public.

DEMANDS 300,000 MORE TROOPS

Kitchener Issues Call For Recruits For the Army.

TO USE POISONOUS GASES

Head of British Forces Praised Canadians For Their Valor Against Deadly Fumes.

London, May 19.—Lord Kitchener, secretary of war, called for 300,000 more recruits.

Great Britain's hope that the great war would be pressed to a speedy end was blasted by members of the cabinet in both the house of lords and the house of commons.

In the upper branch of parliament Lord Kitchener called for the additional recruits, while in the house of commons Premier Asquith admitted that the government contemplated the possibility of a long war and was taking steps to meet any emergency that might arise.

Secretary Kitchener stated that the British and French governments felt that the allied troops must be adequately protected against poisonous gases by the employment of similar methods. These would remove the enormous and unjustifiable advantage which must otherwise exist.

In both houses the government was questioned as to the ammunition resources. Lord Kitchener expressed his confidence that the supply would be sufficient "in the very near future." In the commons the premier declined to give any detailed information on this point, replying that discussion of the munitions question would be inopportune and prejudicial to the strategic situation at present, but said that ample opportunity for such discussion would be offered hereafter.

During a further statement on the military situation Lord Kitchener paid a high tribute to the Canadian soldiers for their valor in Flanders. "The poisonous fumes used by the Germans at Ypres were a hard ordeal to try the qualities of the finest army in the world," he said. "All credit is due to the Canadians, who, unprepared for such an attack, nevertheless withdrew in perfect steadiness."

Lord Kitchener gave a general review of the situation in the war zone before the house of lords adjourned for the Whitsuntide holidays. Speaking of the British offensive, he said the action at Neuve Chapelle "was fought with great gallantry, which enabled us to occupy positions of considerable military importance previously held by the enemy."

Referring to the offensive movements now in progress in La Bassée and the Arras region, Earl Kitchener said: "We have all followed with admiration the forward movements of our brave allies in an offensive operation which has been marked with complete success and which are still proceeding with every promise and indication of being wholly satisfactory."

The news from the Gallipoli peninsula, in other words, the Dardanelles, was thoroughly satisfactory, Earl Kitchener declared.

The success of the offensive of the allies around La Bassée is, in the opinion of British observers, balanced by the Russian reverse in the eastern arena, but which, it is argued in London, may show a different aspect when the Russian counter stroke in eastern Galicia and Bukovina is once fought out.

The campaign so successfully launched in the past few days in the northern part of France, if it can be pushed home, must have a most serious effect on the German lines, is the belief of British military critics. With the possible advent of Italian forces on the Austrian rear the argument is being advanced that there must be soon a relaxation of the German and Austrian pressure on the Russian front.

SOLDIERS TO PLAY BALL

San Johnson Heeds Appeal and Will Send Outfit to France.

Chicago, May 19.—Canadian soldiers in France who want to play base ball between battles will be supplied by American leaders of the game with the paraphernalia, which they cannot obtain readily abroad.

The soldiers complained to their friends and relatives in Canada that base balls, bats and gloves were very scarce in France.

Official attention was called to this, with the result that President Ben Johnson, of the American league, and others were appealed to. President Johnson has promised to contribute several boxes of new base balls.

Athlete Killed Under Cars.

T. R. WAS READY TO TURN

Wanted to Support Man to Fight "Crookedness" in All Parties.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 19.—The last of the evidence in William Barnes' suit for alleged libel against Colonel Roosevelt was presented in the supreme court here yesterday. Counsel began to sum up their respective cases today.

Both Colonel Roosevelt and Mr. Barnes were examined again before the lawyers announced that the taking of testimony had come to an end.

Colonel Roosevelt, when called to the stand, admitted that he was ready to support a Republican candidate for governor of New York at the last gubernatorial election.

The former president, when asked about a conversation John W. Hutchinson, a New York lawyer, testified he had with him in New York, said:

"I asked Mr. Hutchinson what he wanted to see me about. He replied: 'We think you are the only man who can handle this Democratic administration,' and he mentioned my Pittsburgh speech. I said I agreed with him, and told him I was willing to support a Republican candidate for governor who would war on Republican crookedness as well as Democratic crookedness. I added that it was useless to ask me to return to the Republican party while it was dominated by men of the stamp of Mr. Barnes."

RUSSIANS HOLD SAN IN HEAVY FIGHTING

Petrograd Denies Jaroslavl Has Been Captured.

Petrograd, May 19.—Efforts of the Germans to force a crossing of the river San, in central Galicia, are being concentrated north of Przemyśl, where a battle for the fortifications along the river slopes is now developing.

According to latest reports the Germans have been unable as yet to reach within striking distance of Jaroslavl and the other fortresses which constitute one of the strongest Russian defensive lines.

Further south along the San, in the neighborhood of Lasko and Sanok, German activity also is reported, but the operations there evidently are less important, being more in the nature of cavalry reconnaissances.

Retirement of the Russian forces from positions in the Carpathians resulted in a compact and effective massing of their troops from the San to Bukovina. Russian successes in the latter region, giving them entire control of the rivers Pruth and Dniester are regarded in Petrograd as offsetting the success of the Austro-German forces in West Galicia. The railroad line between Kolomea and Delatyn, which has been of great importance to the Austrians for maintaining communication with their base in Bukovina, is reported to be in Russian hands. It had been defended stubbornly by the Austrians.

Easy To Darken

Your Gray Hair

You can Bring Back Color and Lustre with Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look

ISSUES CALL FOR VOLUNTEER ARMY

National Security League Seeks Million Members.

FOR DEFENSE AGAINST WAR

Declares United States, Without Recourse to Militarism, Should Adequately Prepare Itself Against Invasion Until Nations of the World Agree Upon Disarmament.

Better coast defenses, a definite military and naval policy, a budget system for appropriating money instead of the present "pork barrel" method in congress, an effective mobile regular army, better government support for the national guard and the creation of an organized army and navy reserve are among the platform planks upon which the National Security League, New York, is sending out an appeal for the enrollment of a first American army of 1,000,000 volunteer workers and for funds to carry the work on.

Among the names which appear in the membership of this league for national defense are: Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to England, honorary president; Alton B. Parker, honorary vice president; S. Stanwood Menken, president; former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, chairman of the army committee; J. Bernard Walker, chairman of the navy committee; Benjamin F. Tracy, former secretary of the navy; Colonel William C. Church, editor of the Army and Navy Journal.

Against, Not For, War.

In the call for volunteers the league points out that "until a satisfactory plan for disarmament has been worked out and agreed upon by the nations of the world the United States must be adequately prepared to defend itself against invasion and also that a military equipment sufficient for this purpose can be had without recourse to militarism." The league was formed, continues the appeal, "as a preparation, not for war, but against war."

There are today, according to the league, but 30,000 mobile troops in continental United States, and this small force is short of officers, ammunition and equipment. It is distributed among fifty-two widely scattered points, which would make it impossible to mobilize quickly at any given point.

The national guard, according to the league, is far below its paper strength in men, equipment and efficiency.

In the report of the naval committee our navy is described as "a peace navy," inadequately manned, without sufficient target practice, exceeded in tonnage by Great Britain, France and Germany, and, moreover, with many of our ships obsolete.

"There is need of a navy of sufficient size," says the committee, "to prevent the capture of our insular possessions, to guarantee the neutrality of the Panama canal and to prevent the landing of a hostile force at any point upon our 21,000 miles of coast."

Has Big Peace Committee.

Among the standing committees being organized by the league is a peace committee, on which it is proposed to invite representatives of the church on a nonsectarian basis to serve together with men distinguished as publicists, whose services will tend to disarm those critics of the league who have brought the accusation that the league is being organized for the promotion of war.

The call for volunteers and for public support is being sent out in the form of an open letter addressed to present and former members of the cabinet, to members of congress, to governors of our states and territories, to mayors, to chambers of commerce and boards of trade, to merchants' associations, to university clubs and alumni associations, to colleges and universities, to patriotic organizations, to all women's clubs and to all American citizens in general.

It is the present plan of the league to make national defense an issue at the coming session of congress. With this program in view, branches are being organized all over the country.

Steps have already been taken for branches in nearly 200 prominent cities.

PLANTS HATE AND LOVE.

Blue Rockets Wage Merciless War on Animals, Says Professor.

"Blue rockets show fear, and the deadly nightshade is full of hatred. Both plants declare merciless war on all animal life. The blue rocket perfume carries one of the deadliest of poisons. One-sixteenth of a grain shot from its poison pistol has proved fatal to a man."

"Give this plant the semimimicry system possessed by the carnivorous plants and it will be more dangerous than the cholera," declares Professor Henry G. Walters, head of the plant research bureau at Langhorne, Pa.

The professor, who maintains that plants have memories and are capable of love, believes also that there are plants which exercise all the emotions of humanity.

Has Discount Served at Gettysburg. T. F. Perkins of Hartsville, Tenn., a Confederate soldier, has a cracker which has kept fresh since the battle of Gettysburg. It is a specimen of the Confederate army hardtack and was picked up on the field July 3, 1863.

A Submarine's Torpedo

I am the sea devil's daughter,
Spawnd where the dead men dwell.
I shoot through the hissing water,
A lance from the prince of hell!
And ever I come to slaughter
As mermaids ring a knell!

The pride of the seas of Britain
Is the wreck of a huckster's cart—
Smitten as whales are smitten
When the swordfish darts to dart!
The little gray shark has bitten
A hole in the kraken's heart!

I am the eel of lightning;
I blast whatever I strike.
The sea top helms frighten
As the shark frights the pike!
Oh, but the bones are whitening
Of things I did not like!

I am the babe of the devil!
Deep hidden I skulk and lie.
Till a liner laughs in revel
And then I dart on high
And kiss with the kiss of evil,
And what I kiss must die!

REFUSE $100,000 FOR BABY.

Parents of Little Girl Reject Offer of Schwab's Brother-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gray of Roaring Branch, Williamsport, Pa., have just refused an offer of $100,000 for their two-year-old daughter Vivian. The bid was made by John Mock, a brother-in-law of Charles Schwab.

Mock met Vivian on toddling with her parents, and it was a pure case of love at first sight. He suggested to the Grays that the little girl be allowed to visit him and that he adopt the child.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray ridiculed the idea, but Mock insisted he was serious, offering to pay as much as $100,000 for the girl.

"Not for ten times that much," said the mother.

"Not for twenty times," said the father.

Sadly Mock turned away and left Roaring Branch for the Panama-Pacific exposition with Mr. Schwab and some friends in a special train.

WAR SETS NEW FASHION.

Frenchwomen Will Look Only at Men With Beards.

Almost every French officer and private who returns to Paris from the front wears a beard. Too much occupied in fighting to bestow a thought on their facial appearance, they allow their beards to grow. They get accustomed to hirsute pendants and do not consider it worth while to remove them when they come to Paris.

Unknowningly they have set a fashion. Frenchwomen no longer will look at a smooth shaven face. So from Furnes to the Vosges every man wears a beard. For woman the beard means that a man has fought for his country, and it is prophesied that the new fashion will last for two seasons at least after peace has been concluded, and it will be for men a mode as glorious as was the necktie in a Steinthal after the brilliant victory over the Statthalter by the Duc de Vendome.

Hit by Sermon, Wed on Spot.

In the midst of a sermon entitled "Take Unto Thyself a Wife" the Rev. George W. Whiteside of Frederick, Md., was interrupted by a man who whispered something. A moment later Hilary C. Rockwell and Miss Nellie B. Barger stood in front of the pulpit and were married.

Not a Bad Definition.

"Fannie, what is the meaning of the word 'natural'?" asked the teacher. "It's the way people act before they learn manners," was the reply.

Helped by Everybody.

Every great man is always being helped by everybody, for his gift is to get good out of all things and all persons.—Ruskin.

Best Thoughts to Dwell On.

NATION APPROVES NOTE TO GERMANY

Country as One Backs Wilson's Stand on Sea Killings.

CRISIS UNITES ALL AMERICA

Statesmen, Headed by Ex-President Taft, Financiers, Churchmen, Men of Every Class, Rush Declarations of Support to Washington With Great Unanimity in History of People.

Perhaps never in the nation's history has an utterance of her chief magistrate called forth such instant and unanimous approval as has President Wilson's note to Germany demanding the cessation of such submarine warfare as resulted in the death of more than 100 Americans through the torpedoes of the Lusitania without warning.

Addressing in New York city 900 Methodist men whom he helped draw up a telegram of sympathy and support to President Wilson, ex-President Taft said:

"The note to Germany, admirable in tone, moderate in the judicial spirit which runs through the entire communication, dignified in the level of the writer takes with respect to international obligations and accurate in the statement of international law, puts the case of the United States in a way that may well call forth our earnest concurrence and confirmation."

Ranks as Great Paper.

Champ Clark, speaker of the house of representatives, issued a statement in Missouri in which he said:

"The American note will attract worldwide attention. In all human probability it will rank as a great state paper. I have no doubt President Wilson will succeed in preserving peace with honor. The last sentence, asserting the administration's determination to maintain the rights of America and Americans, will be most generously applauded. One thing is certain—the American people will sustain the president in this crisis, for they do not doubt his ability nor his patriotism."

Senator Atlee Pomeroy of Ohio, member of the foreign relations committee, said, "The note was what the American people expected—fine in both temper and substance—and it shows President Wilson's great wisdom and ability to deal with a delicate situation."

Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan, member of the foreign relations committee, said of the note, "If trouble should result—which I do not anticipate—every patriotic citizen will sustain the course of the United States government."

What People Expected.

Representative Cyrus Cline of Indiana, member of the foreign relations committee, declared, "President Wilson has met the expectations of the people and will have their co-operation."

Senator G. M. Hitchcock of Nebraska, "We should insist on the president's demands even to the point of enforcement."

Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington, "This nation will give the president practically undivided support in enforcing his clearly expressed conditions."

Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois, "President Wilson's note is in accordance with international law and the usages of civilized warfare. He deserves the support of all loyal citizens."

Senator Kenyon of Iowa, "I believe the president's demands will be complied with. He will never lead us to war if it can be honorably avoided."

Governor Walsh of Massachusetts, "It could not have pointed out the national injury in plainer language."

Governor Ferris of Michigan, "The president's note is a masterpiece of strength and diplomacy."

Governor Willis of Ohio, "The president has sounded a note which will be heard around the world."

Nation Has Spoken.

Governor Dunne of Illinois, "The American nation, through its president, has spoken, and the patriotic citizenship of the republic will sustain him to the end."

Governor Ralston of Indiana, "The administration's note is as vigorous as it is convincing. The American people stand back of President Wilson regardless of party or nationality."

Governor Capper of Kansas, "The note is all the more impressive because of its temperate and restrained language and its spirit of friendliness."

J. P. Morgan, "I think the president's note to Germany is perfectly splendid and admirable."

Henry P. Davison, "The note bore the endorsement of every American."

Frank A. Vanderlip, "Every sentiment in the note was correct. The American people will stand by it."

Henry Clews, "President Wilson's note is worthy of commendation from every citizen of the United States."

Cardinal Farley, "I do not believe people of any other nation in the world would have controlled themselves as our people have done under the stress of such circumstances."

On Memorial Day

THERE'S a thrill and a throb in the air today.
A throb and a thrill ever new,
For billows have broken o'er wall and town
Of red and of white and of blue.

The blood runs swift and a shrill huzza
Springs glad to the lips of youth,
While louder the silence speaks of those
Who fought, dear God, for thy truth.

It floats up the aisles of the village church;
It springs from the statehouse dome;
It kisses the breeze wherever it please,
Set firm in the heart of the home.

"UNTIL THE CHILDREN WE TELL THE TALE."

And all through the hours the incense of flowers,
Of prayers and of praise is swung
From a censer of gold that the children hold
While the storied past is sung.

The censer is memory's storied urn
That holdeth for love and rue
The ashes of those whom each heart knows
Fought for the gray or the blue.

Fewer each year as the end draws near,
When none will be left, not one,
Who saw the sorrowful sights of war
Or shared in the brave deeds done.

But unto the children we tell the tale,
And once in each twelve-month long
We honor the men who died for us
When the goodly land went wrong.

—Selected.

When the Band Played "Dixie."

One of the bands in a recent Memorial day parade in Chicago started up "Dixie." The tune didn't catch the ears of the crowd at first. A negro "mammy" who was selling hot tamales was the first to notice it. Snatching her handkerchief from a mysterious pocket, she began to cheer. The Philippine veterans in their khaki suits came marching by.

"Do you remember, Bill," asked "Felix," "how the Rizal orchestra used to play that down in the old Luzon cafe when we were just back from the provinces?"

"We used to stand up on the table, didn't we?" said Bill.

Then, with a shout, the khaki troops joined in the chorus. A group of Japanese boys caught the inspiration of the song and waved their handkerchiefs. The veterans down the long line began to cheer. The little southern boy in gray whose grandfather had been "also a veteran" tossed his cap into the air.

"That tune makes the north and south one, doesn't it, mother?" he asked.

And his mother bent down and kissed him on the forehead.

THE RETURN OF THE COLORS.

The return of Confederate flags captured by Union soldiers is another strand to bind together the north and the south in an unbroken union. There were some who thought that all the opposing regimental flags should have been buried with the honors of war at the close of the conflict, nevermore to have a resurrection. But they have been kept, and now the Union soldier thinks fondly of his own colors, rent and stained, hanging in shreds and patches, but still the royal emblems of glory and ultimate victory. Let him see them, and he will press them to his lips and rain tears of joy upon their tattered folds. His heart interprets the feelings of his Confederate comrade who fought so gallantly under the standards he had surrendered in battle.—Bishop Fallows.

He Did Not.

Jeff de Angelis met a New York newspaper man. "Do you remember," asked the newspaper man, "one time, while you were playing in Kansas City, you offered $10 for the best original verse for your 'Women' song?" "I do," replied the comedian. "I won that ten." According to the laws of fiction, Mr. de Angelis should have said: "I've been looking for you for years. Here's $1,000 as a retainer. I want you to write me a comic opera."

But he didn't. What he did say was: "Well, that's so long ago I guess we can be good friends, nevertheless."

LURES CADDIES FROM GOLF

By A. P. Taylor.

Groups of caddies may be noticed at the various country clubs, where golf and tennis have been joined by another sport—"The Sport Alluring," excitedly talking over the prospects for members of their order becoming noted as "trap boys." These guardians of the golf ball find an appeal in the truly American sport, trapshooting, that is lacking in the imported Scottish sport. Hunting lost balls compares unfavorably with releasing clay targets, and carrying a bag of sticks stands no show at all with sitting comfortably in a trap house with the shot of the "enemy" sailing harmlessly overhead.

Of course, there are fewer trap boys needed than caddies, so the wily youngsters are urging upon these country club "gun bugs" the desirability of having a friend "at trap." Now anyone who has watched the "clay skimmers" take uncanny flight when directed by the hand of a crafty youngster, will readily be convinced of the logic of this. Hence each erstwhile caddy seeks to attach himself to a "smasher of skimmers" by promising easy "straightaways," though the lad would likely find it difficult to deliver the promised goods.

But as probably every boy has hopes of some day becoming president and sitting in the White House, with the power of establishing a confectionery and jam department, for the exclusive use of the chief executive; so the caddy has hopes of sitting in the trap house, with the absolute authority to release a "right-quartering saucer" or a "lazy straightaway" or a "humdinger" at some disconcerting angle and listen to the music of "PULL," "BANG," "LOST."

Trapshooting clubs are increasing so rapidly that the tables may be turned and more trap boys will be needed than there are caddies to act as such. Of course, when that time arrives these various groups of conniving caddies, that we now see at country clubs, will be but a faint memory of a bygone age.

TO INTERCEDE FOR PEACE

Delegation of Women Carrying Hague Resolution to Berlin.

The Hague, May 19.—An embassy from the International Congress of Women, headed by Miss Jane Addams, of Chicago, left the Dutch capital for Berlin to intercede with Germany in favor of peace recently adopted by the Women's Congress at The Hague.

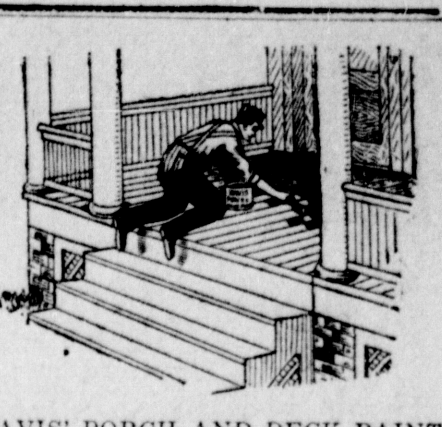

On Monday the delegation was received by Premier Asquith and Foreign Secretary Grey in London, when they presented to the British government official copies of the resolution in favor of peace recently adopted by the Women's Congress at The Hague.

The Leading Nation.

In every age of the world there has been a leading nation, one of a more generous sentiment, whose citizens were willing to stand for the interests of general justice and humanity at the risk of being called by the men of the moment chimerical and fantastic. Which should be that nation but these states?—Emerson.

Lost Opportunity.

When our physician asked little Alice if she would come and live with him she said, "Doctor, you had me once; why didn't you keep me?"—Exchange.

DAVIS' PORCH AND DECK PAINT is made especially to resist all weather conditions—so when painting why not use the thing for the purpose? It will cost no more—will look right and wear right.

HIS LOVE STORY

MARIE VAN VORST

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT BY THE BOBBY-MERRILL COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Le Comte de Sabron, captain of French cavalry, takes to his quarters to raise by hand a motherless Irish terrier pup, and names it Pitouche.

CHAPTER II—Sabron dines with the Marquise d'Esclagnac and meets Miss Julia Redmond, American heiress, who sings for him an English ballad that lingers in his memory.

CHAPTER III—Sabron, trying to save Pitouche's life, declines a second invitation to dinner because of a "very sick friend."

CHAPTER IV—No more invitations come from the Chateau d'Esclagnac. Pitouche, though lame from his accident, thrives and is devoted to Sabron.

CHAPTER V—Sabron and Pitouche meet the Marquise and Miss Redmond and after the story of Pitouche is told Sabron is forgiven and invited to dinner again.

CHAPTER VI—Sabron is ordered to Algiers, but is not allowed to take servants or dogs. He is invited to a musicale at the Chateau.

CHAPTER VII—At the musicale Miss Redmond, hearing that Sabron cannot take Pitouche with him, offers to take care of the dog during his master's absence.

CHAPTER VIII—Pitouche, homesick for his master, runs away from Miss Redmond. The Marquise plans to marry Julia to the Duc de Tremont.

CHAPTER IX—Unknown to Sabron, Pitouche follows him to Algiers.

CHAPTER X—Dog and master meet and Sabron gets permission from the war minister to keep his dog with him.

CHAPTER XI—In his desert camp Sabron receives a letter from Julia telling him that Pitouche has run away from her.

CHAPTER XII—Sabron writes Julia of Pitouche. The Duc de Tremont finds the American heiress capricious. A newspaper report that Sabron is among the missing after an engagement with the natives causes Julia to confess to her aunt that she loves him.

CHAPTER XIII—Sabron, wounded in an engagement, falls into the dry bed of a river and is watched over by Pitouche. After a horrible night and day Pitouche leaves him.

CHAPTER XIV—Julia goes in search of Sabron, reported missing.

CHAPTER XV—Tremont takes Julia and the Marquise to Algiers in his yacht, not knowing their errand.

CHAPTER XVI—

The Duke in Doubt.

The short journey to Africa—over a calm and perfect sea, whose waters were voices at her port to solace her, and where the stars alone glowed down like friends upon her and seemed to understand—was a torture to Julia Redmond. To herself she called her aunt cruel, over and over again, and felt a prisoner, a caged creature.

Tremont found her charming, though in this role of Florence Nightingale, she puzzled and perplexed him. She was nevertheless adorable. The young man had the good sense to make a discreet courtship and understood she would not be easily won. Until they reached Algiers, indeed, until the night before they disembarked, he had not said one word to her which might not have been shared by her aunt. In accordance with the French custom, they never were alone. The marquise shut her eyes and napped considerably and gave them every opportunity she could, but she was always present.

The Duc de Tremont had been often in love during his short life. He was a Latin and thought that women are made to be loved. It was part of his education to think this and to tell them this, and he also believed it a proof of his good taste to tell them this as soon as possible.

He was a thoroughly fine fellow. Some of his forefathers had fought and fallen in Agincourt. They had been dukes ever since. There was something distinctly noble in the blond young man, and Julia discovered it. Possibly she had felt it from the first.

From the moment that the old duchess had said to Robert de Tremont: "Julia Redmond is a great catch, my dear boy. I should like to have you marry her," her son answered:

"Bien, ma mere," with cheerful acquiescence, and immediately considered it and went to Tarascon, to the Chateau d'Esclagnac. When his mother had suggested the visit he told her that he intended making up a party for the Mediterranean.

"Why don't you take your godmother and the American girl? Miss Redmond has an income of nearly a million francs and they say she is well-bred."

"Very good, ma mere."

When he saw Miss Redmond he found her lovely; not so lovely as the Comtesse de la Maine, whose invitation to dinner he had refused on the day his mother suggested the Chateau d'Esclagnac. The comtesse was a widow. It is not very very comely if I fail to marry a widow, in the Faubourg St. Germain. Miss Redmond's beauty was different. She was self-absorbed and cold. He did not understand her at all, but that was the American of her.

One of his friends had married an American girl and found out afterward that she chewed gum before breakfast. Pauvre Raymond! Miss Redmond did not suggest such possibilities. Still she was very different from a French jeune fille.

With his godmother he was entirely at ease. Ever since she had paid his trifling debts when he was a young man, he had adored her. Tremont, always discreet and almost in love with his godmother, kept her in a state of great good humor always, and when she had suggested to him this little party he had been delighted. In speaking over the telephone the Marquise d'Esclagnac had said very firmly:

"My dear Robert, you understand that this excursion engages you to nothing."

"Oh, of course, marraïne."

"We both need a change, and between ourselves, Julia has a little mission on foot."

Tremont would be delighted to help Miss Redmond carry it out. Whom else should he ask?

"By all means, any one you like," said his godmother diplomatically. "We want to sail the day after tomorrow." She felt safe, knowing that no worldly people would accept an invitation on twenty-four hours' notice.

"So," the Duc de Tremont reflected, as he hung up the receiver, "Miss Redmond has a scheme, a mission! Young girls do not have schemes and missions in good French society."

"Mademoiselle," he said to her, as they walked up and down on the deck in the pale sunset, in front of the chair of the Marquise d'Esclagnac, "I never saw an ornament more becoming to a woman than the one you wear."

"The ornament, Monsieur?"

"On your sleeve. It is so beautiful. A string of pearls would not be more beautiful, although your pearls are lovely, too. Are all American girls Red Cross members?"

"But of course not, Monsieur. Are all girls anywhere one thing?"

"Yes," said the Duc de Tremont, "they are all charming, but there are gradations."

"Do you think that we shall reach Algiers tomorrow, Monsieur?"

"I hope not, Mademoiselle. Miss Redmond turned her fine eyes on him.

"You hope not?"

"I should like this voyage to last forever, Mademoiselle."

"How ridiculous!"

Her look was so frank that he laughed in spite of himself, and instead of following up the politeness, he asked:

"Why do you think of Algiers as a field for nursing the sick, Mademoiselle?"

"There has been quite a deputation of the Red Cross women lately going from Paris to the East."

"But," said the young man, "there are poor in Tarascon, and sick, too."

Narrow Teaching.

Those who teach morality, limiting its obligations to duties toward family or country, teach you a more or less narrow egoism and lead you to what is evil for others and for themselves. Country and family are like two circles drawn within a greater circle which contains them both; like two steps of a ladder without which you could not climb any higher, but upon which it is forbidden you to stay your feet.—Mazzini.

Passing of Youth.

To me the passing of youth was escaping from torment of passion, strife and trouble into a placid content. My griefs and joys grew less violent. I ceased hunting those who had wronged me, and, in lesser degree, grew calmer in my attachments. Undisturbed by passions I found I could think more clearly, be more liberal and understand better.—American Magazine.

What Makes White Spots on Nails.

It is now thought that the white spots which frequently appear on finger nails are due to the presence of gas in the substance of the nail. They occur much more frequently during youth and in women, and are usually found in persons of nervous type. There is no remedy for them and no means of prevention except the avoidance of injury to the nails.

First Safety Matches.

Safety matches did not come into use until 1852, when a Swede by the name of J. E. Lundstrom started to make these matches at Jonkoping, although his process had been patented eight years previously by another Swede, G. E. Pasch, who, however, never put into practical use his invention.

Land Always in Motion.

We are apt to think of the sea as something that is constantly shifting and the land as something quite stable. In reality the land is always moving, and science now believes that quite possibly it is moving even faster than the surface of the ocean.

"He may have dragged himself away to die in some ambush that they have not discovered, or likely he has been taken captive, le pauvre diable!"

"France will do all it can, Monsieur."

"They will do all they can, which is to wait. An extraordinary measure, if taken just now, would probably result in Sabron being put to death by his captors. He may be found to-morrow—he may never be found."

A slight murmur from the young girl beside him made Tremont look at her. He saw that her hands were clasped and that her face was quite white, her eyes staring fixedly before her, out toward Africa. Tremont said:

"You are compassion itself, Mademoiselle; you have a tender heart. No wonder you wear the Red Cross. I am a soldier, Mademoiselle. I thank you for all soldiers. I thank you for Sabron . . . but, we must not talk of such things."

He thought her very charming, both romantic and idealistic. She would make a delightful friend. Would she not be too intense for a wife? However, many women of fashion joined the Red Cross. Tremont was a commonplace man, conventional in his heart and in his tastes.

"My children," said the marquise, coming up to them with Mimi in her arms, "you are as serious as though we were on a boat bound for the North Pole and expected to live on thinned things and salt fish. Aren't you hungry, Julia? Robert, take Mimi to my maid, will you? Julia," said her aunt as Tremont went away with the little dog, "you look dramatic, my dear; you're pale as death in spite of this divine air and this enchanting sea."

She linked her arm through her niece's. "Take a brisk walk with me for five minutes and whip up your blood. I believe you were on the point of making Tremont some unwise confession."

"I assure you no, ma tante."

"Isn't Bob a darling, Julia?"

"Awfully," returned her niece absent-mindedly.

"He's the most eligible young man in Paris, Julia, and the most difficult to please."

"Ma tante," said the girl in a low tone, "he tells me that France at present can do practically nothing about finding Monsieur de Sabron. Fancy a great army and a great nation helpless for the rescue of a single soldier, and his life at stake!"

"Julia," said the marquise, taking the trembling hand in her own, "you will make yourself ill, my darling, and you will be no use to anyone, you know."

"You're right," returned the girl. "I will be silent and I will only pray."

She turned from her aunt to stand for a few moments quiet, looking out at the sea, at the blue water through which the boat cut and flew. Along the horizon was a mist, rosy and translucent, and out of it white Algiers would shine before many hours.

When Tremont, at luncheon a little later, looked at his guests, he saw a new Julia. She had left her coat with the Red Cross in her cabin with her hat. In her pretty blouse, her pearls around her neck, the soft flush on her cheeks, she was apparently only a light-hearted woman of the world. She teased her aunt gently, she laughed very deliciously and lightly flirted with the Duc de Tremont, who opened a bottle of champagne. The Marquise d'Esclagnac beamed upon her niece. Tremont found her more puzzling than ever. "She suggests the chameleon," he thought, "she has moods. Before, she was a tragic muse; at luncheon she is an adorable sybarite."

Why Is Trapshooting?

The Reason For a Shot Gun Is the Answer.

A Yankee answer to the question "Why is trapshooting?" is "Why is a shotgun?"

Answer the second question and you will have answered the first. The answer to both is that the average American likes to do a thing himself rather than simply watch others do it, and he loves a gun.

There are millions of shotguns owned in the United States. Could there be better proof of the American liking for this type of firearm? Estimates vary as to the number of trapshooters in the country, but putting it conservatively there are fully 500,000. Here is evidence that Americans like to "play" as well as watch their favorite games.

During 1914 more than 1100 new trapshooting clubs were organized and the average increase in membership of old clubs was more than 50 per cent. This year promises to beat last year's record.

To what proportions the clay bird game will eventually grow it is impossible to predict, but that it bids fair to outdistance every other form of outdoor recreation is a forecast that has strong evidence to back it.

VACATIONISTS CARRY GUNS

Shooting is Now an Attraction at Many Resorts.

The vacationist of today carries with him an equipment that in extent would make a war correspondent envious.

An inventory of the outdoor pleasure seekers' baggage would show a camera, golf sticks, a tennis racket, fishing tackle and the lately-added shotgun, for at any resort that rightfully lays claim to being modern, will be found trapshooting layouts of a character that would do credit to a gun club.

Keen rivalry among resorts for the "trapshooter trade" has resulted in the annual staging of tournaments that in attractiveness of programs, value of trophies and attendance equal the handicap meets of the Interstate Association. As a matter of fact, several of the resort shoots are "registered" with the Interstate, thereby receiving the official sanction of "organized" trapshooting.

GUNNERS KEEP IN TRIM
Work at Traps Improves Aim For Field Shooting.

Naturally, the "first line" of trapshooting recruits is drawn from field shots who get in the game to keep in practice during closed seasons. However, the lure of the sport itself soon claims the gunners and, in many cases, trapshooting comes to have first claim on the sportsmen.

GEORGE D. PORTER,
Director of Public Safety, Philadelphia.

These men soon become adepts in the art of shattering the clay saucers. A large number of the professional target shooters are recruited from the ranks of veteran field shots.

The other class of trapshooting beginners is composed of city-bred men, who have little opportunity to yield to the inherent American desire to use firearms. With these novices, recreation plus the native liking for powder burning is the impelling motive back of their mastering the intricacies of the trap game. Included in this classification is an ever increasing number of business and professional men who find in an afternoon at the traps a tonic for fagged nerves that excels in efficacy all the medicine in a well stocked drug shop.

RACE FOR A WIFE.

Getting Married Is a Strange Game In Frigid Kamchatka.

AN ORDEAL FOR THE GROOM.

After Working Hard For a Few Years For the Girl's Father He Finally Wins Her in a Public Chase, In Which He Gets His Skin Well Tanned.

It gets too hot for the Siberian only once in a lifetime. The native Koryak of Kamchatka, far up in the peninsula that is washed by the Bering sea, can sleep comfortably in a room four feet high with six by eight feet of floor space and have a fire smoking near all night while the doors are tightly closed, and then does not object if three others share his apartment with him. Tomorrow he will have chance enough to breathe more cold, fresh air than he cares for. His picture of the happy hereafter is a snug, cozy place where every cell of his body can perpetually enjoy warmth and where neither ears, fingers nor toes shall be frozen.

Once in his life, however, things get a little hotter than he can honestly enjoy, and that once he cannot escape if he is to be a man of importance in the community, for it is his marriage ceremony. As soon as the youth falls in love in dead earnest he calls on the maiden's father to find out what dowry she can bring in case of eventual marriage. Since reindeer is the Koryak's medium of exchange, the dowry usually consists of reindeer. If the father consents to the engagement and the dowry pleases the young man he interviews the girl, and if she reciprocates his affection he enters her father's service. Chopping wood, tending the herds, cultivating the garden and all other kinds of farm work fall to his share. The period of service lasts from two to three years.

The marriage ceremony begins about 6 in the evening. There is a building in the village into which the villagers crowd at twilight. A large hall runs through the center of the building on either side of which are from ten to fifteen little rooms called pologs. Each polog is separated from the next by heavy reindeer curtains, and the entrance from each polog into the hall is closed by similar curtains. Nowhere in all that building except in the hall could a good sized man stand upright.

After considerable eating and some drinking a brass drum begins to beat. At the same time a solemn faced Koryak passes from one polog to another, dropping willow sprouts and alder branches in each inclosure. Presently the beater of the drum begins to sing, to accompany his slow performance on the drum. Gradually he accelerates his beats and his song. Faster and faster he smites his drum; louder and louder he sings, until within thirty minutes he has worked himself into a state of frenzy—a consumption that is not without its effect upon the villagers. The stolid calm with which they entered, suggestive of an impending funeral, gives place to smiles, to tossings of the head, until by and by the whole crowd is as excited as its leader.

At this point, the front curtain of each polog goes up, and two or three women appear inside. In their hands are willow sprouts and alder branches. In a moment the father of the bridegroom enters the building, leading the happy couple by the hand. The noise, the shouting and the whirling now become indescribable. At a signal from the groom's father the bride dashes into the first polog to the right. The women that are within lift the curtain for her, and she passes quickly from one compartment to the next.

Not so with the groom. He dashes after her, but no sooner has he entered the first polog than the women begin to beat him with the willow sprouts and alder branches. He seizes the curtain to enter the next polog, but one or two women hold it down, and if he finally succeeds there is a hot application of branches on that part of his anatomy that remains longest within the polog.

Meanwhile the women in the next polog are ready to receive him with equal warmth. They ply the switches energetically and do not hesitate to thrust out a foot also in order that the "happy groom" may stumble and afford a more enduring target for their blows.

There is no escape from this experience until the groom has entered and passed through every one of those twenty or thirty pologs. The front curtains are raised, so that the public has a clear chance to enjoy the spectacle.

Of course he never catches the bride. She has reached the last polog before he is halfway through. If she passes out of the last polog he must work another year at her father's house and pass through the same ordeal once more. But she usually awaits him in the last polog, and when they meet there the wedding ceremony is finished—and they are man and wife.—Youth's Companion.

The Mistaken Idea

The idea that advertising is necessarily expensive prevents many people from disposing of articles at a profit.

With the idea that it is costly to advertise in the paper they go on a still hunt for customers and eventually accept a loss to get through with the affair.

A man of exceptionally wide acquaintance may approach a hundred people by personal solicitation when he wants to sell something.

The time and energy expended in this performance is not usually taken into account, but if it is, he finds that by expending an equal amount of time at another occupation he could have earned or produced several times the cost of an advertisement that would reach at least a thousand people—probable customers for his product.

The advertisement may cost him sixty cents. Say it does. If it saves him the time it took to interview twenty-five people, about half a day, and the chagrin of having annoyed twenty-three of them who were not interested in what he offered, would he not have gained by advertising?

Newspaper advertising informs but does not annoy.

BERLIN WEIGHS U. S. DEMANDS

Will Delay Reply to Note For Several Days.

SAY WILSON IS BRUSQUE

Berlin Tages Zeitung Says Communication Reads "Like a Speech of Asquith to Commons."

Berlin, May 19.—The official text of the American note to Germany was published here. It was said at the foreign office that it would be some days before the answer of the imperial government was ready. This because the note raises many points, and consultations between several departments of the government will be necessary in preparing a reply.

While the Berlin newspapers as a rule refrain from comment upon the communication from Washington, the Tagliche Rundschau says:

"Owing to the presence on board the Lusitania of ammunition which menaced the lives of many thousand German soldiers, it was not only Germany's right, but her duty to sink this auxiliary cruiser, which was bringing ammunition to England and using American citizens as a shield for carrying contraband. More sacred than the lives of neutrals are the lives of our compatriots, our brave troops, who would long since have ended the war if America had not prolonged it by the profitable export of arms to our enemies."

"America, as always, is proud of her sober reasonableness, and when English mendacity has abated she will say that Germany violated no American rights, but acted according to right and duty as she was obliged to act."

The Tages Zeitung says:

"The United States makes the brusque demand that Germany abandon submarine war against Great Britain. The United States disregards with complete disdain the German war zone declaration communicated to Washington on Feb. 4 and later, in the course of the exchange of notes, disapproves as 'surprising irregularity' the German embassy's warning in the press, and permits itself to impute to the German government as an excuse the probability that German submarine commanders acted contrary to orders."

"Whoever reads this note without prejudice can scarcely escape the impression that the British ambassador at Washington was not far away when it was framed. One could equally as well imagine its contents to be a speech by Premier Asquith in the house of commons."

BRAZIL PAPERS RAP KAISER

Must Halt Piracy or Make Himself Hated in North America.

Rio Janeiro, May 19.—Commenting on the American note to Germany, the local papers in editorial articles express the view that this communication makes it incumbent upon Germany either to make herself hated in North America or cease her "piratical and infamous acts."

In defending its interests, the papers say, the United States is defending the interests of all America and of all neutral countries—countries which already have taken action along these lines.

ODD FELLOWS IN SESSION

360 Past Grands Admitted Into Pennsylvania Grand Lodge.

Stroudsburg, Pa., May 19.—The annual session of the Odd Fellows' Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania opened formally with an address by W. A. Erdman, of Stroudsburg, after which Mayor C. L. Edinger welcomed the members. Paul A. Benson, grand master, responded to A. Mitchell Palmer's welcoming address.

Preliminary business so far accomplished has been admittance into the grand lodge of 360 past grands. Never before has there been such a large number admitted to this last degree of Odd Fellowship at one session.

Mrs. Virginia Mull, of Philadelphia, grand president of the Rebekah Assembly, and her staff also conferred the last degree of the order upon 167 past noble grands.

In the fight for grand treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of M. Richards Muckle, of Philadelphia, Past Grand Master Fred C. Haney, of Scranton, seems to be the favorite candidate, although F. P. Sperry, of Philadelphia, is opposing him hotly.

War Costs Britain $12,960,000 a Day. London, May 19.—F. D. Acland, the financial secretary to the treasury, has estimated the cost of the war to England at £30 ($150) a second. This means £2,952,000 ($12,960,000) a day. Lloyd-George's recent estimate was £2,100,000 ($10,500,000) a day.

Trample on German Flag. Watertown, N. Y., May 19.—While a crowd cheered a German flag hoisted during the night was lowered from the flagpole in front of the G. A. R. hall at Norwood, torn to shreds and trampled on.

Olive Trees Live Longest. Olives are declared to be the long-lived fruit trees, some in Syria having borne abundant crops for more than four hundred years.

$16,000,000 CAR ORDER BY PENNSY

50 Locomotives Also Contracted For by Company.

Philadelphia, May 19.—The Pennsylvania railroad announced that it had placed orders for $16,000,000 for freight cars and $1,000,000 for locomotives with outside companies, a total of $17,000,000 toward the $25,000,000 which it was stated a month ago the company would spend this year for new equipment and for material for equipment which it will build in its own shops.

The award of $17,000,000 worth of contracts for new equipment at this time is striking proof of the confidence which the management of the Pennsylvania railroad feels in the business future of the country.

The total improvement program of the Pennsylvania system for passenger and freight cars, locomotives and rails will approximate $22,424,000, and the bulk of these contracts is expected to be let by the end of this month.

The 14,943 freight cars are classified as follows: Three thousand five hundred box cars, 324 refrigerator cars, 3000 gondola cars and 7219 hopper cars.

The orders were distributed among these companies: Pressed Steel Car company, 2800; American Car and Foundry company, 3443; Standard Steel Car company, 1000; Cambria Steel company, 3300; Haskell & Barker, 2500, and Ralston Steel Car company, 1000.

Denver Votes "Wet."

Denver, Colo., May 19.—The lightest surge vote ever polled in Denver was cast in the municipal election, when voters adopted the home rule amendment making Denver "wet," and which will result in endless court litigation.

MYSTERY SOLVED BY WOMAN'S WIT

How an Innocent Man Was Saved From Gallows.

Many years ago Edward Bixby left a loving wife and their little ones to seek his fortune in the west. Bixby became a prospector in Colorado and bought a claim which he worked with a man of the name of Clark. One day Clark took Bixby to a little pocket of rocks near the mine and showed him where he had placed some articles he did not care to keep on his person. There were some money, a revolver, a gold pencil case, a bunch of keys and a picture of a woman.

"I want you to know where these things are in case anything happens to me," Clark said, and, having covered the pocket with a broad, flat stone, left no sign of the concealed articles.

Some time after this Clark was taken ill and, having no relative to leave any property to, made a will leaving his interest in their claim to Bixby, though there was then no great apparent value in the hole they were sinking. Clark recovered, but the will was not destroyed.

One day Bixby left the claim for a day to buy provisions, and when he came back he found that Clark had been murdered during his absence. There was no trace of the murderer, and Bixby was much puzzled as to who had done the deed. Bixby went on digging and finally struck very valuable ore. Then he filed Clark's will.

He had been suspected of Clark's murder, and now that it appeared he had a motive he was arrested. He could not prove that the murder was committed during his absence, and no one else was known to have an interest in Clark's death. Persons who had sold him and Clark the claim they had worked when it was thought to be of little value, hoping that if Bixby was hanged they might get it back, manufactured evidence against him, and he was convicted. The usual efforts were made by his lawyers to save his life, but they were all failures, and finally they told him he must prepare for death.

It was only a few days before the execution was to take place that a young man, an effeminate, apparently half-witted fellow, entered a saloon at the county seat where Bixby had been tried and was to be executed. Going to the bar, he called for a drink and in payment offered a revolver. The bartender while examining it noticed scratched upon the handle "Jarvis Clark," the name of the man who had been murdered. The bartender took the revolver in payment for the drink and immediately sent it to the authorities. The young man who had offered it was arrested, and on his person was found two of the other articles Clark had buried, the gold pencil case and the picture of a woman.

The man could give no account of himself, and since Clark had shown the picture to several persons they were enabled to identify it as his property. Bixby was released and the young man was put on trial for the murder of Clark.

Bixby's lawyers advised him to spare no pains to convict the accused, thus vindicating himself, but Bixby declared that his misfortune had shattered his nerves and he would go east to be nursed back to health by his wife. The prosecuting attorney had objected to his being permitted to depart. Bixby, however, got away before any legal move could be made to detain him.

He had had plenty of time to reach a safe distance when the young man who was about to be tried sent for the prosecuting attorney. When that official appeared the prisoner said to him: "I'm not a man, I'm a woman and the wife of the man you hoped to hang. My husband wrote me where Clark had concealed certain articles. I came here, found them and produced the revolver for the purpose which has been achieved. I had arranged it all with my husband."

The astounded official ordered the prisoner to be examined by a woman, who found her claim to be true.

"And now," said Mrs. Bixby, "I believe the picture of the woman Clark hid with the other articles to have something to do with the murder. Release me, and I will endeavor to find out."

Mrs. Bixby was released and set about the task she had assigned herself. It was not long before she discovered the picture to be that of a woman who had left her husband for Clark. The erring woman's husband was arrested for the murder, but he was not brought to trial. The sympathy of the people was in favor of one who had simply avenged a wrong in a way that they considered legitimate. The prisoner confessed that he had long looked for Clark and when he found him gave him a fair chance for his life. But, fearing arrest on charge of murder, he had fled as far as possible from the scene of his revenge.

There was a great deal of sympathy for Bixby, who had come so near being hanged for a murder he had not committed and a great deal of admiration for the woman who had saved him. He remained in hiding till his wife had uncovered the real facts of the tragedy; then, on an invitation from the people of the region, he returned, took up the work on his mine where he had left it and became rich.

The outcome of the case had a salutary effect on judicial procedure in the community, the accused being given opportunity to prove innocence.

RURAL AMERICA.

Our Country as It Was in the Time of George Washington.

The America of Washington's day was primitively, really rural. The country outnumbered the city thirty to one. It outvalued and outinfluenced the city. The country was contrived without urban qualities or dependencies. Not even the cities themselves were civilized. Philadelphia, the greatest of them all, with the finest shops, the best houses, the most extravagant people, was but a poor, small triangle of houses, with its base on the Delaware and its apex stretching timidly toward the west. Its people, though reputed gay and luxurious, went early to bed, rose early and were without the opportunities and distractions of modern urban life. There were no great factories, no armies of workmen, no extended commerce, no horse cars, no omnibuses, no sharp differentiation of the city into business and residence sections. Like envious New York and aspiring Boston, Philadelphia was still half rural.

A great city was not desired nor even contemplated. To "the fathers" the very conception had in it something unwholesome. A city was a dwelling place of turbulent, impious, ignorant mobs, of a congregation of "unproductive" artisans, wastrels, criminals, Sabbath breakers. It was a blister on the social body, a tumor which absorbed the healthy juices. The city was vaguely associated with royalties, courts, armies, beggars and tattered, insolent, rascally mobs; the country was the cradle of republican virtue and democratic simplicity. Jefferson, having in mind the squalid agglomerations of the old countries, congratulated America on being rural. Dr. Tocqueville in the thirties believed that the absence of a great capital city was "one of the first causes of the maintenance of Republican institutions."—Walter Weyl in Harper's Magazine.

SHIP CANALS.

Each Has Troubles of Its Own That Require Constant Care.

Leave any ship canal alone for even a year and it would no longer be fit for navigation. Within five years a small boat would be unable to go through it.

The United States has anxieties over the Culebra cut in the Panama, but not more so than the Germans over their waterway, the Kiel canal, for the ground through which the latter is cut is in most places nothing but peat-rotten black stuff which keeps on breaking up and falling back into the canal.

Also the bottom continually "bumps up," thus lowering the depth of the passage. The craft that use the Kiel canal have to crawl along. They say that if a cruiser were to make a dash through at top speed it would take a year and several millions of money to remedy the damage done by her stern wave.

Each canal has its own special troubles. That of the Panama is land-slides. Many have taken place during its construction. Many more will have to be dealt with in coming years. It is estimated that if the dredging work on the Suez were abandoned within less than ten years the Turks or any one else could cross it dryshod. On both sides of the canal stretch miles of dry desert, from which every wind that blows lifts the sand in eddy spirals and carries it in great clouds. A single storm may drop a thousand tons of sand into one mile of the canal.

Of late years a great quantity of trees have been planted along the banks in order to prevent the sand from drifting into the water, yet even so great steam dredgers are always at work scooping from the bottom the blown in sand and dumping it along the shore. Another trouble of those in charge of the Suez canal is caused by fresh water springs, which burst up in its deep bed and pile the sand in ridges.—Exchange.

Couldn't See the Wisdom.

Little Jack was found in the pantry covered with jam. His father said, "I think, my boy, you would better go and show yourself to mother." With a roguish look Jack replied, "No, daddy, I think I better not."

The Kitchen GUPBOARD

ECONOMICAL GRIDDLECAKES.

BREAKFAST MENU.

Fresh Eggs, Griddlecakes, Maple Syrup, Tea, Coffee or Cocoa.

POUR one cupful boiling water over one-half cupful cornmeal. Stir one-half cupful sweet milk and one and a half cupfuls of sour milk together. Add two cupfuls flour and two tablespoonfuls liquid yeast. Beat thoroughly and put in a warm place to heat overnight. In the morning add one-half teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful salt.

Fried Tomatoes.

Cut fine, ripe, solid tomatoes in halves. Dress with pepper, salt and sifted cracker dust. Put three tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan. When very hot cook the tomatoes on both sides and serve. Flavor with a little onion juice.

Remove Pecan Meats Easily.

Place pecans in a pan of boiling water. Remove from fire and let stand for awhile. Then crack and remove meats from shell.

Fish Hash.

Take equal parts of cold flaked fish and cold boiled potatoes finely chopped. Season with salt and pepper. Put fat salt pork in frying pan and remove most of the scraps. Leave enough fat in pan to moisten fish and potatoes. Put in frying pan and stir until heated. Cook until well browned underneath. Fold and turn like an omelet.

Potato Croquettes.

Take some fresh boiled potatoes or some leftovers from the day before. Rice two cupfuls and mix in one-half cupful of grated cheese. Add one egg and two tablespoonfuls butter. Season with one-half teaspoonful salt and a few grains of cayenne. Shape into desired form. Roll in crumbs, egg and again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat and drain on paper. Set in oven to keep hot.

Cocoanut Cakes.

Cream six ounces butter with eight ounces sugar, and when very light add two tablespoonfuls rosewater. Then stir in lightly eight ounces grated cocoanut and one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg. Whip the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth and fold in lightly. Turn into small soufflé cases and bake until brown. Serve cold, with powdered sugar sprinkled over.

Anna Thompson.

Master of Many Tongues.

Eliza Burritt, the "learned blacksmith," was born in Connecticut in 1810. Burritt taught himself French, Latin, German, Italian, Greek and Hebrew while an apprentice at the forge and in early manhood mastered Sanskrit, Syriac, Arabic, Norse, Spanish, Dutch, Polish, Bohemian and Turkish. Chinese and minor languages were acquired later until he was able to read, write and speak in sixty different tongues.

Some Burned Letters.

Sir Walter Scott once made an itinerary of the borders, in the course of which he wrote a lawyer friend in Edinburgh a close and realistic account of everything he heard and observed, every quaint location and droll custom. But the stupid heirs of the recipient of these priceless epistles consigned them to the flames and thus rendered what would have been a charming book impossible.

Pleasant Employment.

A Matter of Location.

"When I was a boy," said Mr. Waterstock, "I wanted to go to sea and be a pirate."

"And you changed your mind," replied Miss Cayenne, "to the extent of deciding to remain on land."—Washington Star.

Knocking the Magazines.

The esteemed correspondent of the World who complains of the everlasting and intolerable sameness of the sign painting on magazine covers, neglects to say what he thinks of the same old stuff that has been running inside for years and years.—New York World.

"The Thinkers of the Country Are the Tobacco Chewers" said one of the greatest thinkers this country ever produced.

Says the Carpenter:

"Every time you see a good joint, it means some carpenter has put in some clear thought and followed it up with a steady, sure hand."

"It's when you have a ticklish job to do that you need a chew of PICNIC TWIST to 'whet' brain and hand to a cutting edge without any dulling after effect."

You can take chew after chew of PICNIC TWIST and get all the uplift without that after effect of heavy, dark tobacco.

Only the mild mellow part of the leaf goes into this soft, convenient twist. That's the secret of its sweet, long-lasting flavor and its extraordinary mildness.

A PRETTY TUB FROCK.

up the deficiency in dress material. The skirt is trimmed with tucks.

If you have a dainty, inexpensive remnant of cotton voile or any other figured material that is not quite sufficient for a full costume make it up in this design and use a guimpe of net, chiffon or batiste to make up the deficiency. The skirt is a straight, gathered affair, finished with graduated tucks. The waist has a round neckline in either high or low effect and is bound with plain silk to match the girdle.

The waist, in fact, is a model that adapts itself admirably to renovation schemes. Six yards 36-inch material, with 2 yards 36-inch chiffon make the entire costume, but for a waist alone just the chiffon and 1 yard of 36-inch material are required.

Confining the lesson of today to the cutting of the waist, we first proceed by laying the guimpe material open so that the front and sleeve may be placed upon it. Both of these sections are laid on a lengthwise thread of the goods and the strap is placed to the right of the front, just opposite the sleeve.

Folding the materials, now place the back on the lengthwise fold and follow the small "o" perforations in determining how deep the neck is to be rounded out.

It also requires an open width of the dress material to cut the outer front. Use only enough of the goods to accommodate the length of the pattern; then fold the remaining piece to cut the back, being careful to lay this section on the fold of the voile.

Any two materials may be combined very effectively in this pattern, provided they harmonize in color.

Yellow is an extremely fashionable color this season, as is evidenced by the number of pale yellow frocks at every opening of importance, and by the hats trimmed with yellow daisies.

A Princess Of Idlewild

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

There was once a principality called Idlewild, the prince of which died, leaving only one daughter, Narcissa. She became the sovereign. Narcissa from her earliest youth had been a studious person.

The principality of Idlewild was very like those of Italy during that period when great poets and artists flourished and the practical gave place to the sentimental.

Shortly after the coronation of the new sovereign the prime minister was replaced by a poet whose verses were setting the Idlewildians crazy. This change was followed by the replacement of the secretary of war by a lady who had made a great reputation as a reproducer of Greek festival dances. Then was the portfolio of finance given to a man whose performances on the violin had often moved audiences to tears. The minister of the Interior was replaced by a woman whose recitations were considered marvelous.

Thus did Princess Narcissa replace a practical cabinet by an artistic one. Many of the people were delighted with the new managers of affairs of state, but a few shook their heads and prophesied that the new departure would not be successful.

The new cabinet had hardly been formed when King Wolfgang IV. of Tessebianca sent a deputation to Idlewild asking for the repayment of a long standing debt due him by the principality. The prime minister received the diplomats, addressing them in hexameters, lauding their sovereign and welcoming them to Idlewild, then turned them over to the minister of finance, who poured forth such melodies on his violin that they were in raptures, forgetting all about the debt they had been sent to collect.

They were about to return to the king of Tessebianca when one of their number remembered that the king would probably ask for the funds. He ventured to reopen the subject and was informed that the matter properly belonged to the interior department and the head of that bureau would address them. Having been introduced to her, she gave them one of Demosthenes' orations in the original Greek, transporting them with admiration.

The embassy departed, too full of emotion for utterance, and made their way back to Tessebianca. Before reaching home the spell under which they had been brought had been dissolved under the heat and dust of the journey, and they knew not what report they should make to the king as to the results of their mission. After a conference they decided to tell his majesty that the government of Idlewild had refused to discuss the question of the debt due Tessebianca and had sent them away with many compliments for his majesty, but no money.

Now, the king was a rigidly practical sovereign. He scoffed at the compliments paid him in hexameters and forthwith declared war against Idlewild, sending there a hundred gentlemen on horseback with twenty trumpeters to proclaim a state of hostility between Tessebianca and Idlewild.

When these gentlemen reached the borders of Idlewild they sent word to the princess, inviting her to come out and listen to what was in store for her on account of their sovereign's wrath. The princess sent for the minister of war, and the two were closeted together for an hour. A messenger was then sent to the war proclaimers that the princess would listen to the proclamation the next morning. Thereupon the deputation, at the invitation of a country gentleman, went in camp on his lawn, that was level and green as the surface of a billiard table.

They had scarcely breakfasted the next morning when, hearing music, they looked up and saw a company of dancers headed by the war minister of Idlewild dancing exquisitely. For two hours, with intermissions for rest, these ladies danced before the proclaimers of war, then invited them to listen to a fantasia on the violin by the minister of finance. These exercises were followed by others from different members of the cabinet, and the program was continued the next day.

One of the proclaimers, with a soul so small that it could be stuffed into a hazelnut, left the festivities and, galloping to his sovereign, informed him of what was taking place. His majesty, in a towering rage, mounted his horse and never stopped till he had come upon his proclaimers of war being entertained by the Idlewildians. By this time the princess had come on the ground, and the king, of course, rode up to the canopy under which she sat on her throne and, dismounting, advanced to make an angry protest against the winning over of his messengers.

The queen smiled so sweetly upon the king that the angry word on his lip was turned to a compliment. She then introduced her prime minister, who read his hexameter eulogium on the king, and the prime minister was followed by others of the cabinet.

To make a long story short, the king married the princess, and war in that land was never afterward known.

What a pity the governments of Europe could not have been governed by sovereigns like the princess of Idlewild! It would have saved the people from the greatest war that has ever been fought.

Rear Admiral W. S. Benson,
New Naval Chief.

Rear Admiral William Shepherd Benson, recently appointed chief of naval operations, is generally conceded to be one of the ablest officers in Uncle Sam's navy. The new office, which was created by the last congress, gives the rear admiral control of and makes him responsible for the preparation and maintenance of plans for the use and efficiency of the fleet in and for war, and in effect also makes him the active head of the navy.

The creation of the office of chief of naval operations does not disturb the general board of the navy, of which Admiral Dewey is chairman.

Before his appointment Rear Admiral Benson was one of the senior captains and in the ordinary course of events would have been promoted to the rank he now holds by virtue of his office next November. Born in Georgia on Sept. 25, 1855, the new chief of operations is young enough to hold his present post for the full term of four years. He entered the Naval academy in 1872 and was graduated four years later, and during a sea service of twenty-two years since that time has cruised practically all over the world.

Since 1908 Admiral Benson's sea duty included the command of several important ships and also service as chief of staff of the Pacific fleet. His most recent sea service was as captain of the super-Dreadnought Utah, and temporarily as commander of the first division of the Atlantic fleet. In July, 1913, he was detached from the Utah to become commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard, where he has demonstrated exceptional executive ability.

executor and co-trustee of the estate of Adolphus Busch, which estate has large holdings in railroad securities."

A native of Texas, his parents moved to St. Louis during the civil war. Young Nagel was educated at St. Louis, where he took a course in law and subsequently studied law and political economy at the University of Berlin. Returning to St. Louis in 1873, he was admitted to the bar and soon took an active part in municipal affairs. He served four years as president of the city council and also served as a member of the Missouri legislature. He was a member of the Republican national committee from 1908 to 1912 and was secretary of commerce and labor during President Taft's administration.

Physician's Prescription For Indigestion

Important for All Those Who Suffer After Eating.

If you suffer from indigestion after eating and find that instead of the one little pepsi or soda pill you used to take, it now needs two or three to stop it, it's time you called a halt and did some hard thinking.

The plain truth is that there are thousands of men and women in this country whose stomachs are dead or dying from lack of exercise while they themselves still live.

Years ago a famous physician wrote the prescription for Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets and thousands owe their very life to them to-day. Most stomach remedies work on the food and digest it. Mi-o-na works on the stomach and digests nothing. Mi-o-na Tablets strengthen the stomach walls, stimulate the stomach muscles and vitalize the stomach machinery into instant and normal action. The People's Drug Store and many other leading druggists hereabouts sell Mi-o-na Tablets, agreeing to refund money in any case where it does not bring complete relief. If your own druggist thinks this well of Mi-o-na you surely ought to try it.

Executor of the last Will and Testament of Levi S. Steinour, dec'd.
Gettysburg, Pa.
April 15th, 1915.

All that blistering pain will go, all your toe-pinched suffering will end, every sign of a foot lump, callous or corn will disappear once you paint on that reliable old remedy Putman's Corn Extractor. It's simply a marvel, the wonder of the day, the surprise of every thinking man the way it painlessly lifts a corn. You can't beat Putman's—that's sure. Sold by dealers everywhere.
